

The Inheritance Inventory

Six questions. Use the first honest answer. The quiet one.

1. What did my parents give me today, without saying a word?

2. What did I give my children today, without meaning to?

3. What did I ask someone else to carry that I would rather have carried myself?

4. What did I carry myself that could have been shared?

5. What remains unfinished between me and one specific person?

6. What no longer needs to be carried by this family?

Take only what is useful. Leave the rest. — Anna · prulesoul